Their huts are simple, built in a few hours and easily abandoned. They subsist entirely off the bush and by bow hunting. Everything they use is made from local materials, including their bows which are strung with giraffe tendon and their arrows which are coated in lethal poison. Their language resembles that of Kalahari Bushmen tribe (who were featured in the 1980 film 'The Gods Must Be Crazy') with clicking noises. After hunting and engagement with the tribe, you depart for Arusha with a stop for your lunch on the way.
